The system adds dates and times on all your posts and submissions. You don't need to add them. Further, you don't need double submissions. If anything goes wrong, I will let you know and you won't be penalized.

Your approach made it difficult to identify the parts and subparts of your product. I also cannot tell if the second product is the same product. If it is your product, then you need to explain why there are 2 sets of parts. You could do so by adding a paragraph at the beginning of each section that explains which section/components are being explained with a list of the included parts. If this is a different product, the description of parts should not appear. If you are using this image to describe your product, then you need to make that clear.

You have the makings of an A paper; this confusion is the primary issue.
